Listening Examination

Elementary Level – Paper A

2006

Instructions to Candidates

This paper requires you to listen to a selection of recorded material and answer the accompanying questions.

Each part of the test will be heard twice.

There will be a pause before each part to allow you to look through the questions, and other pauses to let you think about your answers.

When you hear the tone you should write your answers on the question paper. Write clearly in the numbered spaces.

You must ask any questions now as you will not be allowed to speak during the test

Life on Earth has been changing and developing over billions of years. Scientists now believe that the simplest forms of life _____(1) in the world's oceans, probably over three billion years ago.

They can only guess what the very _____(2) plants and animals looked like. The shallow coastal areas of early oceans were probably full of _____(3), brown and red algae, which we call seaweeds. It is thought that many early sea animals had _____(4) bodies, without shells and bones or other hard parts. They include jellyfish, different _____(5) of worms and other creatures related to starfish. The first fish had a head, a backbone and a tail but no fins or jaws. They could not _____(6) very fast and sucked food into their mouths instead of biting it. The oldest living animals _____(7) a backbone are sharks, which were swimming about in the seas 400 million years ago!

The oldest fish is the Coelacanth, which grows to about 2 metres _____(8). Scientists thought the last one had died out about 70 million years ago, _____(9) in 1938 they found out that they were wrong. A fisherman caught a strange fish in the Indian Ocean. To everyone's amazement it _____(10) a 'living fossil' – the Coelacanth.
